

A TOURER FOR TODAY

Keeping in touch is easy at the computer/TV console

Slide-out BBQ positioned up forward

Clean, open, modern interior

Protective chequerplate is fitted along the flanks. At the rear is a solid bumper carrying a spare wheel and capable of supporting such things as jerry cans and bike racks. The rear lights are easily visible and mounted in a chequerplate panel.

Water is supplied by two 95L tanks, and 12V power is supplied by an on-board battery pack.

Up top is a roof-mounted air-conditioner, four seasons hatches, satellite dish and Winegard TV antenna.

INTERNAL FEATURES

The Mudgee is a rear-door van with kitchen and bathroom at the rear, dinette/lounge, fridge and communication consoles in the centre and the bedroom up forward.

The kitchen is stylish and practical, with a stainless steel sink and four-burner cooktop (three gas and one electric) and grill in the benchtop. A benchtop cover is fitted over the cooktop to add to available bench space. There are plenty of storage cupboards, drawers and lockers fitted.

The Northstar Mudgee brings practical technology to caravan touring

Touring around Australia is one of the best things we can do, but no matter where we go, it's good to be able to keep in touch with home and family. This can be difficult in some of the more remote areas, but not in the Northstar Mudgee.

They've built an extremely comfortable touring caravan, with the added bonus of a communications centre so you can keep in touch wherever you are.

EXTERNAL FEATURES

The Northstar Mudgee is an attractive caravan with aluminium cladding over a timber frame. It's built on a DuraGal chassis with dual axles and spring/rocker suspension. The A-frame carries a pair of 9kg gas bottles forward of a spacious boot protected by chequer plate and a stone shield.

Along the flanks is a slide-out stainless steel BBQ, with a roll-out awning, external light and power outlet.

SUMMARY

The introduction of a communications centre into a 'standard' touring van layout is both innovative and very practical. The Northstar Mudgee is a very comfortable, well-built touring caravan. ■

The kitchen area is practical and has plenty of storage space

The bathroom is fitted in the rear driver's side corner behind an opaque door and is quite roomy.

Forward of the entry is the lounge/dinette – roomy and comfortable, with a tri-fold table to add practicality.

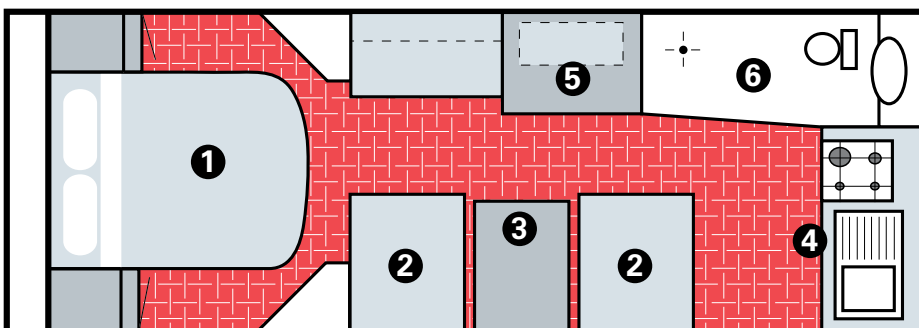

Opposite the dinette is the fridge console with a 164L fridge beneath a microwave oven.

Alongside the fridge is the communications centre, featuring a one-touch satellite system and flat-screen TV, above a fold-out bench that conceals a laptop station, with a pull-out seat beneath that can also act as a footrest at the end of the lounge.

The bedroom is open and bright, with wardrobes, bedside tables and drawers on either side, lockers above the bedhead and corner cupboards at the foot.

The Mudgee is very nicely built, practical in layout and very comfortable.
